Community Action Agencies serve 99% of all American counties with life-changing services to help families achieve financial stability. Agencies are locally controlled and represented by the private, public, and low-income sectors of the community. “We’re excited to welcome community members to learn about available Community Action support and community programs that strengthen families,” says Susan Harding, OLHSA CEO.

Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency (OLHSA) is a member of the National Community Action Partnership and Michigan Community Action, which were born out of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964. OLHSA works with community members to improve the quality of life for people facing crisis while strengthening families, communities, seniors, and youth.
